

13, 15 & 17 STAMFORD ROAD

Capitol Theatre, 2008

This development has three iconic buildings – Capitol Theatre, Capitol Building and Stamford House - built in the mid-1900s with Neoclassical and Art Deco influences. Dormant for over a decade, their restoration which commenced in 2011 was a combination of technical excellence and artistic skill. Missing details and finishes were reinstated. The spirit of the original Persian Zodiac ceiling mural was re-captured. The pair of ‘Pegasus’ reliefs at the sides of the stage were delicately cleaned to reveal details. Of notable mention is the revival of the iconic ‘Capitol Theatre’ Art Deco sign.

Revitalisation of this development is further enhanced through sensitive interventions that honour the past and celebrate the future. They include the new roof over the Galleria and the new balconies to the rear court of Capitol Building. Stamford House has also regained its original 1900s role as a hotel. The architectural and social landmarks have truly been revived for many to enjoy.
